Katja Bohner

Katja Bohner joined the VFP-APSI after receiving her Master's Degree in Nursing Science in 2016. She became soon after vice-president in the Academic Society for Acute Care and committed herself in this group to topics like nursing classifications, nursing informatics and data analytics.

She changed to the newly founded Academic Society for Nursing Economics in October 2021 and took the role of co-presidency. Since May 2022 she is part of the board of the VFP and will represent the board in the newly founded Health Policy Commission of the VFP.

For her, networking is an art and a challenge in the ever increasing complexity of the health care system with its multiple layers. She gained various insights and valuable perspectives in her professional life and in her academic endeavors. She is focused on patient-centered, effective and ethical health care and interprofessional collaboration on a level playing field.

„Health Care as a system has to be designed and re-designed consciously by the various stakeholders over time because it is a common good.“
